PETS PETS PETS

"HE JUST AIN'T ACTING RIGHT" ATTENTION ALL OWNERS OF MALE CATS: PLEASE, PLEASE, PLEASE READ AND SAVE THIS ARTICLE!

WE ARE NOT ACCEPTING NEW CLIENTS OR ADMITTING FORMER CLIENTS WHO HAVE NOT BEEN INTO THE PRACTICE IN THE LAST THREE YEARS!

(Reprint) My wish is that everyone in the world who owns a male cat reads this article. You all can help me by showing this to your cat-owner friends who, in turn, can send it to their cat-owner friends, who can then send it on to their cat-owner friends. This story can also be found on my humble website which can then be easily forwarded to your cat owning friends. <http://www.worldsvet.com/blockedcat.htm>

Treasured readers, urethral obstruction is such an important topic that—HOLD ON TO YOUR HATS—I'm gonna get right to the point; no stories, no rambling, no bull-excrement, not even any presidential jokes!

There's a disease out there that I often see in male cats (and, rarely in females) known as urethral obstruction. A common expression that we veterinarians use for this condition is "being blocked." (Plugged-up, occluded, and obstructed are other words used to describe this disease.) With this disease, the male cat's penis literally becomes plugged-up (blocked) and then, because of this blockage, they can no longer pee.

Urethral obstruction (being blocked) is one of the few actual life-or-death emergencies that exist in veterinary medicine, and it can be diagnosed by your veterinarian in about a second just by feeling the poor guy's abdomen. Sadly, however, because it's such a very sneaky disease, most owners don't recognize the problem until it's too late. Death from urethral obstruction can occur within a day due to a ruptured bladder, metabolic disorders, kidney failure, or cardiac arrest. And this death is a painful, agonizing, death. If they're not tended to, these poor guys really hurt!

Symptoms of this disease show up in many ways. What most owners notice is that the cat seems to be spending a lot of time in the litter box and not actually doing anything. Sadly, many owners misinterpret this difficult elimination behavior as constipation or worms, and then waste precious hours trying to doctor the cat with laxatives, hairball, or worming medicine. Sometimes the cat just wants to hide behind the refrigerator or be left alone under a bed. Most of the time, however, the owner's only complaint is the cat "just ain't acting right." And to confuse the matter even more, these same symptoms can also be seen in simple bladder infections.

Treating this disease can be very challenging. The patient nearly always has to be put under anesthesia to be unblocked. Because of the possibility of damaged kidneys, this process alone can be life-threatening. Once under anesthesia, we will then try to dislodge the blockage through a combination of catheterizing and back-flushing. If this procedure is successful, an indwelling catheter (a tiny plastic or rubber pipe) is often inserted up the penis. This will allow the bladder to drain accumulated urine, which in turn will allow the bladder to heal itself.

Complications of this medical procedure are many. Some of these complications, but not all, are: not being able to unblock the poor kitty in the first place, becoming blocked again a day or two later, ending up with an atonic bladder (one that will no longer empty on its own), kidney failure, or urinary incontinence.

I can almost hear the question being asked, "So, Doc, what causes it?" And I know already that you're gonna be unhappy with my answer.

Despite what the cat food ads say, what the popular press and cat care books all say, or, what all the Internet armchair veterinarians say, the truth is that there is no one single cause. Over the years, the ash content of the various cat foods (both wet and dry) has been blamed, obesity has been blamed, bladder and kidney infections have been blamed, too early neutering has been blamed, too late neutering has been blamed, too much salt or too little salt have been blamed, the mineral content of one's well water has been blamed, and on and on. Again, no one knows for sure.

I knew you wouldn't be happy with this answer.

So, what can you do? By far, the most important thing you can do is just be aware that the problem exists and be watchful for it. Pay attention to your cat's habits. The earlier the treatment begins, the greater the chance of success. If you even vaguely suspect the problem, please don't waste time messing around with the home remedies. Hours are precious with this disease.

Obituary

SHARAN A. STODDARD, age 80, longtime resident of Lodi, died at Cayuga Medical Center on Friday, March 27, 2026, as a result of failing health the past few years.

Sharan was born in Ithaca on November 11, 1945, a daughter of the late Orris and Wescena Smith. She was married to James "Jim" Stoddard in 1978, and they followed his Air Force career around the country until moving back to New York in 1990. She had been a CNA at the former Lakeside Nursing Home for many years prior to her retirement. Jim and Sharan were active members of the Lodi Fire Company, she served as firefighter, fire police and as an auxiliary member. They volunteered countless hours to the community and could be found at every event held by the company for decades, until her health prevented her from being there. She was a loving wife, mother and Grandma to her many grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Sharan is survived by her husband of nearly 48 years, Jim of Grove Street in Lodi, her children; Kirk Smith of Oneonta, Garth "Skip" Cook of Ovid and Shawn (Steve) Cook-Allen of Ovid, her grandchildren; Anthony and Christopher Cook, Crystal Craig, Ashley Matteo and Bryan Cook and several great grandchildren; her sister, Dawn Smith of Trumansburg and brother, Terry Smith of Lodi. She was preceded in death by her brothers, Kenny and Robert F. "Butch" Smith.

The family will receive friends at Covert Funeral Home from 12:30 to 1:30 on Friday, April 3, 2026. Prayers of committal will be held at 2:00 on Friday at NYS Veterans Cemetery - Finger Lakes in Romulus, officiated by Pastor Dave Spencer, chaplain of Lodi Fire Department. In lieu of flowers, kindly consider a donation in Sharan's memory to the Lodi Fire Department, 8557 S Main St, Lodi, NY 14860.

Medical Lab Professionals: An Unseen Influence in Your Care

When you think of a hospital, you probably envision doctors, nurses, and other white-coat wearing, patient-facing professionals. On the bottom floor of Arnot Health and Cayuga Health, members of Centralus Health, are science sleuths who play a critical role in patient care.

Microbiologists, like Corey Swingle, study microorganisms such as bacteria, viruses, algae, fungi, and some types of parasites.

"I'm glad I get to be part of the patient's care, making them feel better," says Cory Swingle, Clinical Laboratory Technician in Microbiology at Arnot Health, a Member of Centralus Health.

You may never see their faces, but if you go to Centralus Health for care, chances are you won't leave the hospital without the help of someone from the lab.

Turnaround time for lab testing can vary. Once your results come back, you can easily view your report on MyChart. Through the online patient portal, you can access test results as soon as they become available, rather than waiting for a phone call or letter from your healthcare provider. For more information on how to sign up, go to centralushealth.org/mychart.

Arnot Health and Cayuga Health have over 15 inpatient and outpatient blood draw stations across Central New York and the Southern Tier. Most Centralus Health lab specimens are processed at Arnot Ogden Medical Center, 600 Roe Avenue, Elmira, NY or Cayuga Medical Center, 101 Dates Drive, Ithaca, NY. For more information on laboratory hours and locations, visit centralushealth.org

"I love being behind the scenes making a difference. I can be a little queasy when it comes to medical procedures, but when the specimen comes on a swab or in a cup, I'm all about it," says Veronica Hroncich, Clinical Laboratory Technician in Microbiology at Arnot Health, a Member of Centralus Health.

Medical laboratories help doctors make definitive diagnoses by collecting and processing samples.

"One of the things I really enjoy is working with patients. We do get the chance to do inpatient phlebotomy, and going out of the lab is rewarding," says Brittany Rinker, Laboratory Assistant at Cayuga Health, a Member of Centralus Health.

Most medical laboratory professionals are rarely seen by patients, but they're an indispensable component of a well-functioning healthcare system.
